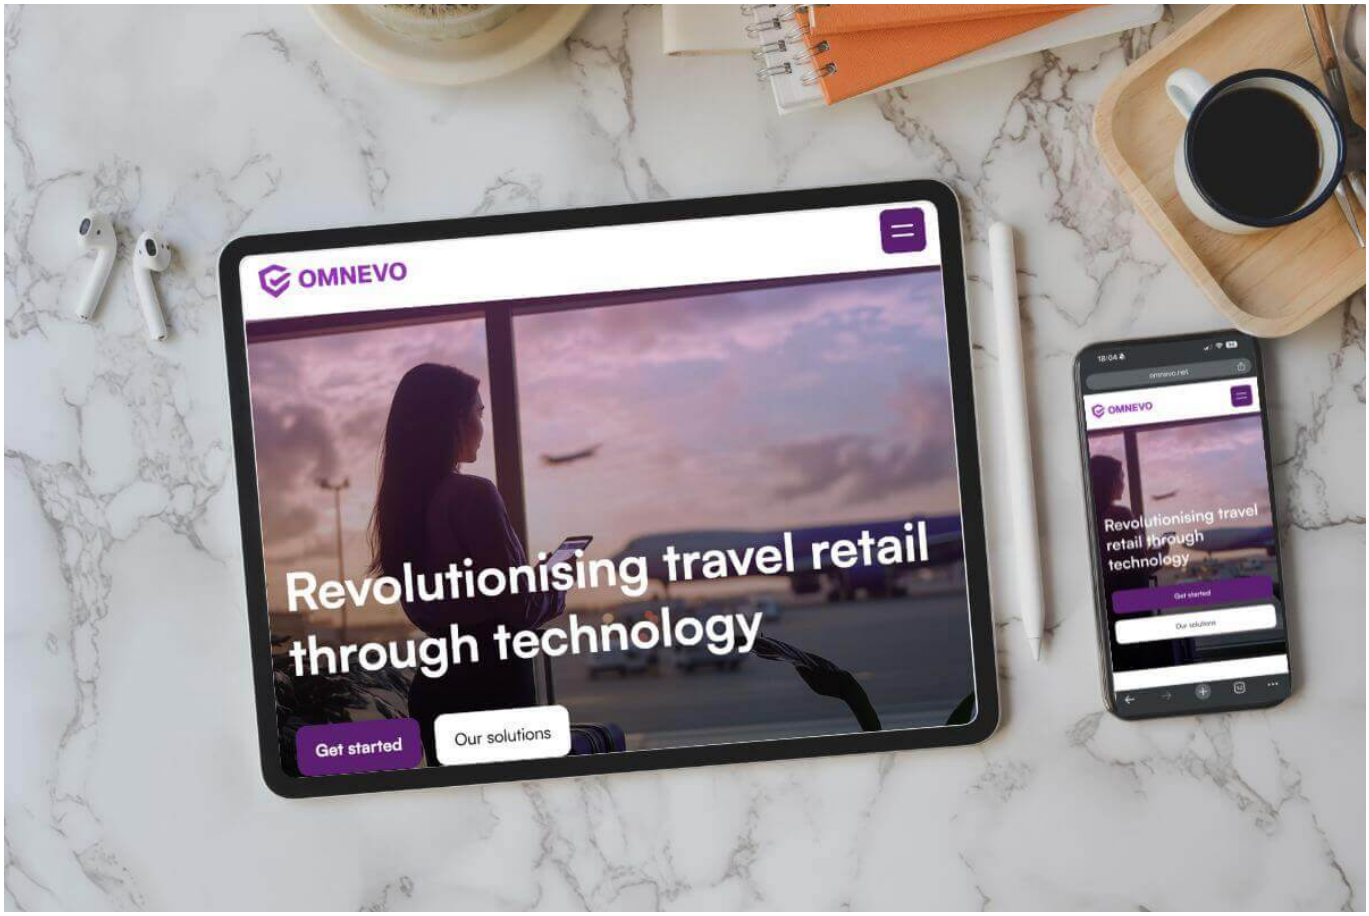
Omnevo shares leadership update, year-end reflections and outlook for 2026



Omnevo helps airlines engage with passengers at multiple points throughout the trip

Omnevo has shared its reflections on the past year and what lies ahead for 2026 in a December 15 blog post.

The company said 2025 was a busy and transformative year, marked by the launch of new capabilities, an expanding product suite and strengthened partnerships that helped customers unlock greater value from digital commerce. The year also saw the renewal of key partnerships and the expansion of multiple end-to-end retail programs. From major platform updates to memorable moments at industry events, “the momentum has been real,” the company said.

Leadership update
“We have also made meaningful improvements across our operations this year to support our next phase of growth,” the company said.

As part of this next phase, Co-Founder and COO Peter Coelho has stepped into the role of Interim CEO.

“I am looking forward to guiding Omnevo through this next chapter. We have built a strong foundation and the progress this year has shown what is possible when the right technology and the right people come together. As we move into 2026, our focus remains crystal clear. Deliver more value for our customers. Accelerate innovation. And continue strengthening our position as the leading end-to-end retail technology partner for airlines, airports, and rail operators," said Coelho.

Copyright DutyFree Magazine. All rights reserved.

Outlining priorities in 2026

Looking ahead, Omnevo said its priorities for 2026 include continuing to raise the bar on product development, deepening customer partnerships and further building a unified, connected retail experience across air, rail and airport environments.

"Thank you to all our customers, partners and friends in the industry for your continued trust and collaboration this year. We are excited for everything ahead," the post concluded.

Copyright DutyFree Magazine. All rights reserved.