
IMDC announces upcoming training course in early June

By Lauren Brunetti on May, 1 2013 | Inflight Entertainment

IMDC, the IFE industry's leading market intelligence service provider, announces plans to hold its next training course on inflight technologies in Miami on the 5th and 6th of June 2013.

IMDC's training courses are highly popular events that provide airlines and suppliers with strategic industry insight and data.

The next course in Miami will provide a comprehensive IFE market overview, an analysis of trends in IFE systems and infrastructure, as well as presentations and a case study on wireless IFE systems, a popular topic that was covered during the previous highly successful event in Hong Kong held in November 2012.

IMDC has been providing tailor-made training and development courses for Airline and IFE professionals since 1999. The number of participants in each workshop is limited in order to provide maximum interaction and peer-to-peer learning. The course includes a mix of lectures, case studies and exercises designed specifically to maximise learning in a non- commercial environment.

If you would like to take part in the training course, or for more information, please contact robert.smith@imdc.net