Two of Air Arabia's A320s have also been upgraded with Honeywell APUs

Air Arabia has signed an agreement with Honeywell for maintenance services and the supply of auxiliary power units (APUs) for the airline's A320ceo fleet. The deal extends the companies' decade-long relationship and also continues Honeywell's position as a supplier of repair services to Air Arabia.

Air Arabia has also upgraded two of its A320s with Honeywell's 131-9A APU.

David Shilliday, Vice President - Airlines, EMEA Airlines for Honeywell Aerospace, said in a press release: "Three out of four A320 aircraft are fitted with our APUs, which is testament to the performance and reliability our products provide. The efficiencies that can be driven in fuel and maintenance speak for themselves, and our longstanding relationship with Air Arabia demonstrates our commitment to customer support and product knowledge."
