

iFLYSmart and FORMIA team up for safety

Calego International Inc. and FORMIA have jointly announced the launch of a collaborative initiative to develop a range of health and wellness amenity kits for airlines. The kits will be branded under Calego's iFLYSmart brand.

"We developed our health amenity kits back in 2017, long before COVID-19 emerged, because we always believed travelers must prioritize their health," said David Rapps, President of Calego and Chief Executive Officer (CEO) of iFLYSmart. "We're thrilled to partner with FORMIA because together we will provide travelers around the world a range of products that answer their health and safety concerns in the most practical way possible."

The range of amenity kits will include antibacterial products, protective face masks and soon-to-be announced items that will make travel safer and more comfortable than it has traditionally been.

"As we watch the aviation community grapple with changes to travel and travelers, we believe it's critical to be at the forefront of product innovation in the health & wellness space," said Roland Grohmann, FORMIA CEO and Managing Partner. "It's exciting to partner with Calego and iFLYSmart because they are experts in the category and have successfully built their brand during such a turbulent period in our industry."
