New long-haul Parisian airline French Bee has secured Flying Food Group (FFG) to cater its first U.S. route out of their San Francisco International Airport location.

French Bee's new route between San Francisco and Paris/French Polynesia began May 11 and will be flying four times per week.

In a May 14 press release, FFG Executive VP of Airline Sales Nicolas Rondeau commented that French Bee combines low fares with top service and quality, adding: "Flying Food Group is proud to support the U.S. launch of this dynamic young airline. We look forward to a long-term connection."
