The lid of the new reusable Edelweiss Box by Clip doubles as a bread plate during the onboard meal

Clip has announced that it is launching refreshed tableware and a new food concept onboard Swiss airline Edelweiss Air. The leisure airline will offer passengers specialties from its different destinations, with local catering companies cooking dishes. The new dishes will be served alongside a choice of iconic Swiss flavors.

The new Economy Class tableware is compact and includes a non-slip tray, durable cups, bowls and cutlery made of metal to reduce the use of disposable items. The tableware range also includes the reusable Edelweiss Box. The lid doubles as a bread plate during the meal, and serves as a token of the airline's commitment to be as environmentally-friendly as possible.

"Thanks to the innovative Edelweiss Box, our crew has even more time now to take care of the well-being of our guests," said Markus Gander, Chief Product Officer of Edelweiss Air, in a release from Clip. "In this way, we ensure that carefree holidays already start on board."
