The refreshed tableware feature muted colors with a pop-of-color in the butter dish

Kaelis has announced that is has designed an updated tableware set for Business Class cabins on all medium- and long-haul flights aboard Uzbekistan Airways.

First introduced in late-summer, the 14-piece crockery designed by Kaelis features white-colored tableware with a colored pattern, soft linens, uniquely-shaped glasses and a dark tray “inspired by Uzbekistan traditional buildings and architecture,” according to the release from Kaelis.

The set contains a light-blue butter dish, a side plate, bowl, main plate and cup with colors inspired by the region’s cotton flower. It also includes a plain white casserole dish, saucer, mug, espresso cup and salt and peppers shakers; wine, whiskey and water glasses; and, a three-piece cutlery set.

“The whole set has been well-selected and extensively tested to meet the high performance and quality standards required by airlines,” the release read.
