

American Airlines selects Ostrichpillow for inflight comfort

Ostrichpillow | American Airlines

Ostrichpillow has been selected by American Airlines

American Airlines has chosen Ostrichpillow to be part of its new onboard travel experience that will launch ahead of Memorial Day weekend.

“We're all about redefining comfort and improving Rest,” Ostrichpillow said via LinkedIn, “So contributing to American’s reimagining of their inflight experience has been a wonderful privilege.”

The Nimbus Pillow is the company’s first-ever foray into crafting a lumbar support cushion. It is ergonomic, sustainable and designed to help passengers enjoy additional comfort during their flight.

“Working with American Airlines has been an immensely gratifying opportunity to directly impact travellers each day around the world,” said Pablo Carrascal, Co-Founder & CEO, Ostrichpillow. “We’re actively changing the way passengers Rest in real-time, and I couldn’t be prouder of the collective effort our team has invested to make this vision a reality.”

Carrascal acknowledged the work of partners Hermann Lahr, Managing Director, and Wayne Costigan, Director, Global-C, who collaborated on bringing the project to fruition.