With concerns about the well being of attendees, organizers of the APOT.Asia event originally scheduled for next month in the Province of Cebu, the Philippines announced the group has changed the gathering to this fall in Bali, Indonesia.

APOT.Asia will now be held October 22-24. No venue location had yet been named at the time of the announcement.

“My team and I deeply regret having to make this difficult decision but felt it was in everyone's best interest to not only be safe but to have the peace of mind to fully enjoy the event,” said Bambang Sujathmiko, Chairman of APOT.Asia, on the organization’s website.

Delegates who have registered and paid for the three-day forum will have their payments held for the fall.
