

Air Canada to offer free inflight Wi-Fi to Aeroplan Members

An Air Canada 787-8 flies over the Canadian Rockies

Air Canada has announced it plans to roll out fast, free streaming-quality Wi-Fi, sponsored by Bell. Beginning in May, this complimentary service will be available to Aeroplan Members on Wi-Fi equipped aircraft for flights within North American and sun markets. The airline also plans to expand free Wi-Fi service to long-haul international routes in 2026.

"Reliable access to streaming-quality Wi-Fi is becoming essential for both business and leisure travellers. That's why we're upgrading our fleet with the latest technologies," said Mark Nasr, Executive Vice President, Marketing and Digital at Air Canada, and President of Aeroplan. "We're excited to offer fast, free Wi-Fi to all Aeroplan Members, with a customer-focused rollout plan that includes installation of service on the Air Canada Express Q400s, including those that fly from Toronto's Billy Bishop Airport. Although other Canadian airlines have announced free Wi-Fi services, not all have accelerated installation across their fleets or committed to offering the service comprehensively. Air Canada plans to offer fast, free Wi-Fi across its entire fleet and will begin rolling out this service in early Spring. What's more, over 85 percent of aircraft will be connected from day one, with the remaining installations being a priority throughout 2025."

Fast, free Wi-Fi will be available on Air Canada, Air Canada Rouge and most Air Canada Express aircraft, the press release said. This initiative builds on the existing free Wi-Fi texting service sponsored by Bell, available since May 2023 for Aeroplan Members. Passengers without an Aeroplan membership will be able to purchase Wi-Fi for their flight at a reduced flat fee.

"This next chapter in our partnership with Air Canada reflects our purpose to advance how Canadians connect with each other and the world," said Blaik Kirby, Group President, Consumer and Small Business at Bell. "We are transforming the in-flight experience for Aeroplan Members, enabling them to be productive, stream entertainment and stay connected throughout their journey."
