

ANA introduces complimentary inflight Wi-Fi for Business Class

ANA
WiFi
Service

ANA Wi-Fi Service keeps passengers connected inflight

All Nippon Airways (ANA), has announced it will offer complimentary Wi-Fi for its Business Class passengers on international flights beginning this summer. ANA's Premium Economy and Economy Class passengers will also have access to complimentary texting with ANA's Wi-Fi Service on international flights by the end of March 2025, the press release said.

ANA Wi-Fi Service on international flights launched in 2014, allowing passengers to access the internet, e-mail and social media platforms inflight. Since then, offerings have been expanded to include complimentary Wi-Fi access on domestic flights and complimentary Wi-Fi for First Class passengers on the airline's international routes.

"ANA is dedicated to continuously elevating our customer experience, and the additional Wi-Fi enhancements that will be utilized for personal or business purposes is the latest offering for our passengers," said Tomoji Ishii, Executive Vice President, Customer Experience Management and Planning of ANA. "Our ongoing efforts to expand inflight services is to provide our customers with an even more enjoyable and connected experience onboard."