Cathay Pacific brings complimentary Wi-Fi to Business Class

Passengers travelling in First or Business Class onboard connected Cathay Pacific aircraft can now enjoy complimentary Wi-Fi service on their flight, the airline announced on September 10.

Cathay Pacific has been providing complimentary Wi-Fi services to First Class passengers since 2022. Following successful trials on selected flights, the airline has now extended complimentary Wi-Fi to Business Class on all connected aircraft and will be further extending it to Cathay Diamond members travelling in all cabins in November.

“At Cathay Pacific, we are committed to investing in and further elevating the experience we provide for our customers. With complimentary Wi-Fi now available to customers travelling in First and Business class, and coming soon to our Cathay Diamond members, they can stay connected in the air whether travelling for business or leisure,” said Lavinia Lau, Chief Customer and Commercial Officer.

Passengers using Cathay Pacific’s complimentary Wi-Fi service can enjoy the same experience as paid Wi-Fi, enabling them to check emails, browse the internet, stream audio, use social media and messaging apps and access cloud storage services and other professional applications. Travellers can connect with one device at a time and can switch between devices at any time during their flight.
