Viasat and Azerbaijan Airlines, the national carrier of Azerbaijan, have officially signed a strategic agreement at the Dubai Airshow 2025 to introduce high-speed, streaming-capable in-flight Wi-Fi across the airline's new fleet.

The agreement was signed by Samir Rzayev, President of Azerbaijan Airlines CJSC, and Don Buchman, President, Aviation at Viasat Inc., during a ceremony that underscored both companies shared commitment to innovation and delivering a superior passenger experience.

Under the agreement, Azerbaijan Airlines will equip twenty new aircraft—including A320 family and 787-9 Dreamliner models—with Viasat Amara, the company's next-generation in-flight connectivity (IFC) solution.

The system is engineered to deliver a high-quality, streaming-capable internet experience powered by advanced satellite network design, state-of-the-art hardware, and a suite of digital products.

The collaboration will also introduce a wireless in-flight entertainment (W/IFE) platform, providing passengers with a rich library of content directly accessible on their personal devices. The first connected aircraft have already entered service.

"We are proud to partner with Azerbaijan Airlines as they bring high-speed, streaming-capable in-flight Wi-Fi to their passengers for the first time," said Don Buchman, President, Aviation, Viasat. "With Viasat Amara, they will be delivering a premium digital experience in the sky. This collaboration reflects our shared commitment to innovation and elevating the passenger journey."

“Cooperation with Viasat marks another significant step for Azerbaijan Airlines in enhancing onboard service. Signing this agreement at Dubai Airshow highlights the international importance of the project and our commitment to innovation. With the introduction of high-speed Wi-Fi, we will offer passengers a new level of comfort and connectivity during their journey,” emphasized Samir Rzayev, President of Azerbaijan Airlines CJSC.

Azerbaijan Airlines will offer inflight Wi-Fi for free to its Business Class passengers and top-tier loyalty members, bringing new opportunities to enhance the passenger experience across its growing international network.
