
Immfly announces Middle East expansion plans

By PAX International on December, 21 2018 | Inflight Entertainment

Immfly has announced its intentions to continue its expansion in to the Middle East, following several international contracts that have been announced over the course of 2018, including partnerships with Spanish airline Wamos Air, Turkey's Pegasus, and SunExpress, a subsidiary of Turkish Airlines and Lufthansa. The company also established an office in Turkey to help in its "smooth and efficient coverage of the Turkish and Middle Eastern markets," according to a November press release from the company.

Yasemin Gurcan, a member of the IT team at Immfly's Turkey office, commented in the same release: "Inaugurating a new office here in Turkey is a clear step forward for Immfly. Everything that we were doing in Western Europe we can now do here. It gives us a sense of enthusiasm and gratitude. Knowing that we are now closer and will be able to see to the needs of our neighbors' customers gives us security and ensures efficiency in delivering the results we promised."

Barcelona-based Immfly also attended the Aviation Festival MEASA for the first time in October 2018.