
JAL expands manga inflight offering in August

By Rick Lundstrom on July, 30 2013 | Inflight Entertainment

Japan Airlines will further expand the line-up of Sky Manga Japanese comics on its in-flight entertainment service starting in August.

It is the world's first in-flight entertainment service available on the airline's 787s bringing Japanese manga to passengers in two languages.

The English version of electronic Sky Manga will be updated every three months. There will be 30 volumes of manga in the English version onboard. Among the titles in two languages are One Piece and Dragon Ball.

Movies featuring manga comics have been increased in recent years. JAL plans to provide the same electronic manga while its movie is presented in the in-flight entertainment service so that the same works can be enjoyed in the different ways.