

Sabena technics and Thales sign multi-year maintenance agreement

Thales and Sabena technics renew partnership

Sabena technics and Thales have renewed their partnerships by signing a multi-year Global Avionics Maintenance Agreement to support Sabena technics' customers. Thales said via LinkedIn that the agreement includes a repair-by-the-hour agreement on the Thales ATR-600 avionics suite, a repair agreement for ATR and Airbus aircraft and a licensee agreement.

"It is a recognition from one of the leading independent European MROs. We look forward to continuously delivering our premium services and maintaining this exciting partnership with Sabena technics," said Thomas Got, Vice President Aviation Global Services business line at Thales.

The primary Thales repair shop serving Sabena technics is located in Châtelleraut, France.

"We are pleased to work with Thales to support the fleet of our customers. Thales provides a high level of performance and flexibility and understands what we expect in order to ensure the operational needs of our customers, which perfectly complement our own pooling and repairs services realized in our Dinard and Bordeaux workshops," said Philippe Delisle, Chief Operating Officer, Sabena ¹
