
Satair and Joramco sign supply agreement

By Rachel Debling on February, 11 2019 | Partnerships, Collaborations & Acquisitions

Jeff Wilkinson, CEO of Joramco, and Terry Stone, Satair's Managing Director and Head of Sales and Support, EMEA, at today's signing

Earlier today at MRO Middle East, Satair and Joramco signed an agreement for the supply of consumables and expendables, covering both Boeing and Airbus aircraft and coming into effect as of February 11. The two companies have been working together for more than 25 years.

Jeff Wilkinson, Chief Executive Officer of Joramco, said in a statement following the signing: "We are very pleased with entering into this engagement with Satair who will support us in strengthening our sourcing and procurement activities through their offerings and ensuring world class part number availability and reduced lead times."

Terry Stone, Satair's Managing Director and Head of Sales and Support, EMEA, also noted: "This day marks an important effort from Satair's side to focus on the needs of our customers in the region. We are pleased to further strengthen the relationship with Joramco and paving the road for an even stronger commitment in the future."