

SIMONA AMERICA promotes Autumn Werner to Group Sustainability Manager

SIMONA AMERICAN Group has promoted Autumn Werner to Group Sustainability Manager

SIMONA AMERICA Group has announced the promotion of Autumn Werner to Group Sustainability Manager.

In her new position, Werner will work with department managers from all three SIMONA AMERICA Group divisions and the SIMONA AG (Germany), sustainability department, to lead the US approach to environmental sustainability, the press release said.

Autumn Werner, Group Sustainability Manager for SIMONA AMERICA Group

Werner will focus full-time on the US sustainability goals. The press release indicated these goals include support for CSRD reporting through SIMONA AG, energy and carbon footprint reduction at all three facilities and assisting with marketing efforts related to the company's sustainability story.

"I am thrilled to support Autumn in her new position," said Samantha Stacy, Technical Director of SIMONA AMERICA Group. "She comes with passion and the drive to learn and advance in the field of sustainability Management. I am confident that her dedication will lead to success in this new role."

Werner brings six years of experience with the company to her new role, having previously worked on the technical team as an applications engineer supporting both SIMONA AMERICA Industries and SIMONA Boltaron.

The press release also said she will continue the education and monitoring of global developments relating to sustainability.