Geven has been approved as “Boeing Offerable Seat Supplier” for line-fit installation of Economy Class seats on the 787.

The company announced this milestone today, the result of a long evaluation and qualification process by Boeing that involved all Geven departments, especially those focused on engineering and manufacturing capabilities.

During the past decade, Geven has reached and maintained high levels of performance, with on-time deliveries and after-sales support.

Alberto Veneruso, Geven’s Managing Director, commented in a statement: “We are very proud about this great achievement and we are looking forward in strengthening our relationship with Boeing and its customers. The company has invested a lot into expanding its production capabilities and is ready for new challenges.”
