flyadeal A330-900neo in the airline's livery, set to support its expansion into long-haul operations with new cabin products and seating partnerships

Geven is reinforcing its partnership with flyadeal through the introduction of its Comoda AQ seat for the airline's first-ever Premium Economy cabin, set to debut on its fleet of A330-900neo aircraft.

The agreement marks a milestone for flyadeal as it prepares to expand into long-haul operations, introducing a two-class configuration that includes Premium Economy for the first time. The A330 aircraft are scheduled to enter service from mid-2027, supporting routes between Saudi Arabia, Asia and Europe, as well as high-demand regional and pilgrimage services.

Geven's Comoda AQ in the 14-seat Premium Economy cabin will feature a seven-abreast configuration, offering a 38-inch pitch and eight-inch recline to provide increased personal space and improved passenger comfort.

Each seat is equipped with a range of passenger-focused features, including dedicated storage for personal items, enhanced cushioning, footrests and USB-C charging ports. The design incorporates a mix of synthetic and leather materials in a deep violet finish, reflecting a modern and cohesive cabin aesthetic.
