

Jamco America unveils decorative branding panels

Jamco America's new range of decorative panels provide branding opportunities

Aircraft interior supplier Jamco America has unveiled a range of decorative and durable branding panels.

The company said the panels offer airlines a cost-effective solution to update the forward and mid-cabin areas in their aircraft. And also provide branding opportunities which include the use of color and embossed logos.

“The new Jamco decorative branding panels provide a perfect opportunity for airlines to refresh or rebrand the cabin interior. These new panels are not only beautifully finished but are extremely durable, which translates into a long-lasting and cost-effective solution for airlines,” said John Cornell, Director of R&D at Jamco America.

Jamco America’s decorative branding panels are thermoformed and are currently being provided at the door one area and mid cabin for narrow-body single aisle aircraft.
