

Third generation range of Jason Wu's sleepwear collection now on EVA Air

Available in two colours and three sizes, these pyjamas are crafted from soft jersey fabric

EVA Air has unveiled its latest collaboration with renowned fashion designer Jason Wu, introducing a third-generation collection of inflight sleepwear.

The partnership, facilitated by Buzz, began in 2019 and has resulted in fashionable and comfortable Jason Wu pyjamas for Royal Laurel Class passengers. This new range showcases a casual hoodie style with a front kangaroo pocket on the top and adjustable draw cords on the tapered-leg pants, providing both style and convenience.

Available in two colours and three sizes, these pyjamas are crafted from soft jersey fabric. The chic athleisure look is expected to transition from fashion runways to airline runways and streets alike.