FORMIA unveiled today a new children's amenity kit for French airline Aircalin. The kit introduces children to the wildlife of New Caledonia, where the airline is based, in an entertaining and educational way.

The colorful drawstring bag kit features activities for kids three to eight years old – an activity book with puzzles, games and fun facts about the animals of New Caledonia, crayons and a family card game that can all be used in flight, at the destination and post-flight at home.

“We are delighted to partner with Aircalin on their new children's kits, which have been curated to deliver products to excite and entertain the younger passengers. The new kits feature thoughtfully designed elements that nicely mix education with culture, providing children with a unique and memorable product experience”, commented Philipp Wendschuh, FORMIA’s Chief Commercial Officer.

“As the New Caledonia international carrier, we are always proud to promote the beauty of our country and to make it discoverable to youngsters in a fun and educational way,” said William Le Grand, Chief Commercial Officer of Aircalin, in today’s press release from FORMIA. “For this new kit, we wanted to highlight the forest animals with the emblematic cagou, endemic and iconic bird of New Caledonia, but also the bat, the parakeet, the deer and the gecko.”

FORMIA and Aircalin have previously worked together to create the Aircalin Children Kit which also paid tribute to the landscapes of New Caledonia. Aircalin operates a fleet of two new Airbus A330neo and two Airbus A320-200, due to be renewed with two A320-200neo in 2020 and 2021.
