

Kaelis unveils two kids' kits for Uzbekistan Airways

The outbound (left) and inbound (right) kids' kits by Kaelis for Uzbekistan Airways

Kaelis has announced its latest collaboration with Uzbekistan Airways, introducing two kids' kits designed to inspire creativity and immerse young passengers in the beauty of Uzbekistan's landscapes in flight. These kits were crafted with sustainability in mind with the aim of transforming travel for children aboard both outbound and inbound flights, the press release said.

The contents of the outbound kits for kids by Kaelis for Uzbekistan Airways

For outbound flights, young explorers will receive a vibrant, one-strap backpack made of recycled polyester in orange hues, featuring an image of Uzbekistan's expansive desert.

The kit contains various forms of entertainment including a Tic Tac Toe game crafted from EVA foam and packaged in cardboard, a fun-filled paper activity book, a durable plastic bottle, a PVC cushion for added comfort, a cardboard pencil box for sketching out new ideas and a reflective bracelet.

Young passengers on inbound flights will receive a colourful neoprene bag in green and blue hues, showcasing the majestic mountains of Uzbekistan. This kit offers hands-on fun with a cardboard tube pencil case, a challenging round maze game, another engaging paper activity book and a unique collection of felt finger puppets stored in a cardboard envelope, to encourage storytelling and creativity. Also in the kit are a wallet and a watch.

"By incorporating sustainably sourced materials like felt and cardboard, this kit continues Kaelis' commitment to environmentally responsible products while keeping entertainment fresh and exciting," Kaelis said in its January 20 press release. "Kaelis is proud to weave the story of Uzbekistan's natural beauty into every kit, helping to cultivate curiosity and a love for adventure in every child."