En Route International, the global food service partner specializing in the complete end-to-end design, development and delivery of complementary and retail on-board food and service solutions, just celebrated its 20th business anniversary.

In the 20 years since its inception, En Route has expanded its capabilities to leverage its extensive supply chain to consistently deliver food solutions across its expansive global network which has grown to include offices in the UAE, Australia and the US.

Today, the company's multidisciplinary team covers all aspects of on-board catering with a "flexible, service partner approach supporting the travel industry with insight-driven meal options, creative branding and design, inventive packaging solutions and comprehensive supply chain planning and fulfillment," the release said.

En Route's Global Managing Director, Nick Wiley spoke of the company's recent achievement in the December 2 release. He said: "I'm very proud to see that after 20 years, En Route continues to push the envelope with innovative and revolutionary culinary and service ideas, and that we're continuing to grow our capabilities with a robust full-service offering to the travel industry."

Formed in 2002, En Route has a solid track record of working in partnership with many of the world's most recognized airlines and airline catering organizations to accelerate onboard culinary, packaging and service innovations. In its 20th year, En Route shows no signs of slowing down having added extensively to its global team, expanding its workforce by over 70 percent.
