"I am thrilled to partner with Qatar Airways and contribute to elevating the culinary experience for their sophisticated passengers. The openness of Qatari society has allowed me to take my creations and skills to international platforms, and I am eager to bring a taste of Qatar to travellers from around the world," said Chef al Marri regarding the collaboration.

al Marri is well known for her innovative Qatari fusion concept, available at the Desert Rose Café in the National Museum of Qatar where she is the owner and chef. Known for her commitment to furthering Qatari culinary heritage, al Marri brings this passion to Qatar Airways to deliver a premium dining experience. She has also garnered recognition on the international stage, having participated in various food shows in China, Germany, India and Turkey.

Qatar Airways Group Chief Executive Officer Engr. Badr Mohammed Al-Meer said, "We are excited to welcome al Marri as our latest Qatari chef, as her exceptional talent and deep understanding of Qatari cuisine will enhance the already exceptional dining experience we offer to our premium passengers. We are always looking for ways to ensure our passengers feel at home when they travel with us, and collaborating with Chef Noof will further elevate the level of luxury and authenticity we provide onboard."

The airline said that al Marri's passion for her craft and dedication to promoting Qatari cuisine aligns with Qatar Airways' commitment to delivering an elevated passenger experience. This partnership is a milestone occasion for the airline, reinforcing its award-winning onboard dining experience.

The collaboration between Qatar Airways and al Marri will bring the flavours of Qatari cuisine to Business Class travellers.
