

---

Snackbox to-go invests in new packing lines

By Rachel Debling on February, 26 2019 | Catering

The Elburg Foods plant that produces the Snackbox to-go range of products will be upgraded to include a fully automatic production and packing line over the course of the coming weeks, according to a release from the company.

The new investment was made based on increased customer demand, said a statement from Snackbox to-go. The new investment will allow the company to better serve its airline customers and meet the increasing demand for selection boxes and tapas-style products.

The expansion will increase the capacity of the Netherlands-based facility by millions of units and will allow the company to pack four different products per box. The fully automated BRC/IFS certified production plant is also McDonald's and Halal certified.