

Plane Talking Products appoints Lee Harper as Product Specialist, Tableware

Lee Harper as Product Specialist, Tableware for Plane Talking Products

Plane Talking Products (PTP) has appointed Lee Harper as Product Specialist in Tableware, strengthening the company's expertise as it continues to deliver high-quality tableware solutions for the airline industry.

Harper brings extensive experience to the role, having spent more than 30 years with British retailer Marks & Spencer, where he developed deep product knowledge and a strong understanding of quality standards, large-scale production and commercial delivery. His appointment supports PTP's ongoing focus on providing considered, reliable tableware programs tailored to airline requirements.

Reflecting on his move into the aviation sector, Harper said: "Coming across the airline industry, I was amazed by the scale of orders alongside such a high standard of quality. It is fast paced and dynamic, and exciting to experience the other side of the negotiating table within a growing company. I am thrilled to join PTP, where sustainability, speed of response and quality are a clear priority."

PTP tells PAX International the addition of Harper further enhances its ability to support airline customers with innovative, scalable and sustainability-focused tableware solutions.
