

Air France redesigns La Première lounge at Paris-Charles de Gaulle

Air France's redesigned La Première lounge at Paris-Charles de Gaulle offers a more private and refined pre-flight experience

Air France has reopened its redesigned La Première lounge at Paris-Charles de Gaulle, introducing a more private and comfortable space for its First Class passengers.

Located in Terminal 2E, the 1,000-square-meter lounge was redesigned with MARKS Brandimage and forms part of the airline's wider premium-experience investment, which includes its new La Première airport journey and onboard suites.

The facility features a larger dining area with table service and a menu created by Alain Ducasse and his teams, alongside a wine and champagne selection curated by Air France head sommelier Xavier Thuizat. Travelers can also access an expanded Sisley spa, relaxation rooms with day beds and a private work and call area.

Three adjoining 45-square-meter private suites are available to reserve, each offering a living room, double bedroom, bathroom and outdoor patio. Travelers may dine privately in the suites and are welcomed with champagne and Sturia caviar.

The newly reopened lounge also displays a Wonder Block artwork by French artist Jean-Michel Othoniel, continuing Air France's program of rotating major artworks every six months.
