On May 19, two Harrys and eight Megan/Meghans manned flight BA93 to Toronto to commemorate the location where the romance between Prince Harry and Meghan Markle first sparked. Senior First Officer Harry Blake was behind the controls of the flight deck, alongside the Captain.

The British Airways flight landed in Toronto at 15:55 local time just as the Royal wedding reception was underway.

Megan Horsley, British Airways Customer Service Manager, who led the namesake crew, said in a statement: “Harry and Meghan’s relationship started across the Atlantic so it seemed fitting for all of us to take-off to Toronto on their special day. I’ve flown with another Megan once or twice before, but never seven so we might have to all call each other by our surnames during this very special flight!”
