
Birmingham Airport opens deli restaurant serving Asian street food

By Tanya Filippelli on December, 11 2013 | Airline & Terminal News

Birmingham Airport has opened a new deli restaurant serving traditional Asian street food to passengers inside its terminal.

Inspired by authentic Asian flavors, Deli Hub by Kababish is the latest addition to the airport's list of eateries. The restaurant offers a Halal menu that includes pakoras, samosa and naan wraps, as well as other traditional Asian foods.

"We hope the Asian inspired decor and authentic street food menu will create an exciting atmosphere inside the terminal. The great tasting food will speak for itself," said Martyn Lloyd, commercial director at Birmingham Airport.

Deli Hub is an extension of the Birmingham-based Kababish restaurants located in the suburbs of the city.

"Deli Hub is a new and exciting concept for us, featuring some of the dishes and ingredients that have become so popular at our Kababish restaurants in Moseley and Sutton Coldfield. We're delighted about this latest venture with Birmingham Airport and we have every confidence Deli Hub will be a big success here," said Sydd Sadiq, managing director of Kababish.