

Jetlines takes delivery of first aircraft

Canada Jetlines Operations Ltd. announced today the delivery of its first A320-200 aircraft from Jackson Square Aviation, a global commercial aircraft lessor, offering customized fleet solutions and proactive services.

"With a projected growth of 15 aircrafts by 2025, Canada Jetlines aims to offer the best-in-class operating economics, efficient aircraft design, and accessible flight options without sacrificing quality or convenience," said a release from the airline.

The newly established all-Canadian carrier will provide air travel options to sun destinations, with launch slated for Spring of 2022. The airline has selected Moment for its inflight entertainment and digital services portal.

"This is a milestone day for our team as we get to witness the inception of our branded fleet, with the delivery of our first aircraft," shared Brad Warren, Vice President Maintenance Operations for Canada Jetlines, in today's announcement. "We have collectively been building towards this moment and we couldn't be happier to partner with Jackson Square Aviation as we prepare for take-off early next year."

"We are excited to be a part of Canada Jetlines journey to launch operations as Canada's newest charter airline, and are delighted to welcome the airline as our newest customer," said John Yanney, JSA Head of Americas Marketing & OEM Relations. He added, "We look forward to developing a long-term partnership with Canada Jetlines as the airline begins to flourish and build upon its future successes as they commence flying in 2022."
