

SSP to bring seven Point stores to Suvarnabhumi Airport

Food items will be freshly prepared on site and the stores will also sell branded confectionery and bean-to-cup coffees

SSP Group is set to open seven Point stores at Thailand's Suvarnabhumi Airport, offering passengers a range of food options en route to departure gates.

Six of the new stores are compact units, while a larger unit will also serve as a kitchen to serve the other outlets. They will be located across various airside locations in the international terminal. Reflecting the varying passenger demographic of each concourse, the offer will include a mix of Western staples such as sandwiches and pastries, and Asian favourites including steamed buns, rice boxes and rolls, as well as Thai comfort foods such as fried rice. Capitalizing on SSP's expertise in F&B, food items will be freshly prepared on site and the stores will also sell branded confectionery and bean-to-cup coffees.

Commenting on the openings, Jonathan Robinson, CEO SSP Asia Pacific said, "Our experience, supported by the findings of our latest customer survey, shows that convenience matters more than ever to airport passengers. These new Point outlets will offer passengers travelling through Suvarnabhumi a selection of great quality, delicious meals and snacks to enjoy at the departure gate or take onto their flight."
