

Turkish Airlines wins Skytrax Best Airline in Europe award

“As the Turkish Airlines family, we would like to thank our valued passengers, who deemed us worthy of these wonderful awards,” said Turkish Airlines Chairman of the Board and the Executive Committee Prof. Dr. Ahmet Bolat

Turkish Airlines was named the Best Airline in Europe by the 2022 Skytrax World Airline Awards last week in London.

Skytrax CEO Edward Plaisted congratulated the airline, saying “winning the award as the Best Airline in Europe is a fabulous achievement in what is one of the most competitive markets.”

A passenger survey with more than 14 million entries determined the winning result. The survey, which operated from September 2021 to August 2022, was provided in English, French, Spanish, Russian, Japanese and Chinese. More than 100 customer nationalities completed eligible entries.

At the ceremony, Turkish Airlines Chairman of the Board and the Executive Committee Prof. Dr. Ahmet Bolat said: “As the Turkish Airlines family, we would like to thank our valued passengers, who deemed us worthy of these wonderful awards, and the Skytrax team, who put this evaluation into practice.”

The airline also won two other major awards: World’s Best Business Class Catering and Best Airline in Southern Europe.
