

Linstol joins United Nations Global Compact

Linstol joins United Nations Global Compact

Linstol has announced that it has joined the United Nations Global Compact (UNGC), the world's largest corporate sustainability initiative. The company says the move aligns with its ongoing efforts to promote responsible business practices within the airline supply sector.

By joining the UNGC, Linstol commits to upholding the Ten Principles covering human rights, labor, the environment and anti-corruption, as well as supporting the advancement of the UN Sustainable Development Goals.

"The Linstol team positively embrace and embody the Principles of the UNGC in everything we do, and our membership demonstrates how we will continue to advance the Sustainable Development Goals through our products and operations — we look forward to reporting our progress to the UNGC each year," said Steve Wickham, Global Head of ESG at Linstol.

The company says participation in the UNGC reflects its broader strategy to lead responsibly in the airline industry, developing products and services that address both customer needs and environmental challenges.