

Registration opens for AIX and WTCE 2025

WTCE 2024

Registration is now open for Aircraft Interiors Expo (AIX) and World Travel Catering & Onboard Services Expo (WTCE) 2025. Serving professionals from aircraft cabin interiors and the onboard hospitality procurement industries, the co-located events will be held at the Hamburg Messe from April 8 to 10, 2025.

Visitors to these events, including professionals from major airlines, catering buyers, lessors and Bizjet operators, will have the opportunity to explore a wide range of products and services spanning onboard services, passenger seating, travel catering and inflight connectivity to facilitate supply chain collaboration and source innovative solutions.

AIX 2025: Showcasing cabin interior solutions

AIX 2025 is set to provide an unparalleled opportunity for aircraft interior professionals to network with industry leaders, discover more than 1,000 cutting-edge products and gain valuable insights into future interiors trends. Attendees to the events can explore solutions to position their organizations at the forefront of industry advancements, from hardware equipment and connectivity systems to onboard restoration and furnishings.

Jimmy James, Director, Technical Ops Procurement, American Airlines, said of the 2024 show: "AIX is a great opportunity to meet with suppliers, both new and existing. It's really efficient to meet with such a large number of suppliers all in one place."

Archana Dharni, Event Director for AIX, commented: “The aircraft interiors and passenger experience world is a hive of innovation with passenger traffic soaring to new heights as a result. Against this backdrop, AIX provides the ideal platform for the entire industry and surrounding markets to connect with industry leaders, explore the latest technologies, and shape the future of air travel. Join us in April to drive innovation, enhance the passenger journey, and unlock new opportunities for business growth.”

WTCE 2025: Defining the future of onboard excellence

Alongside AIX, WTCE will return for its thirteenth edition as a global event for elevating passenger experience through inflight catering and onboard comfort. With a strong focus on eco-friendly amenities, onboard wellness and next-gen catering solutions, WTCE is set to unite top air service providers, onboard catering companies and award-winning brands to showcase the hottest trends and product innovations shaping onboard comfort and services globally.

Simone Walli, Catering Manager Culinary Art and F&B onboard Concepts at Austrian Airlines said about the show: “WTCE provides a really easy way to network, and it helps me to find novel ideas and products. The setup is always valuable for me, and for other airlines.”

Shona Thomson, Event Manager of WTCE, added: “WTCE offers valuable opportunities to network and meet industry contacts – not only existing suppliers but also to see what’s new and find inspiration to elevate the onboard passenger experience. Previous visitors have expressed how instrumental WTCE has been in facilitating meetings, signing new deals and forming new industry contacts. This year we’ll see the event expand on its key pillars – technology, sustainability, nutrition, allergens and special meals and beverages – with even more features on the show floor that shouldn’t be missed.”

AIX 2025 will take place in Halls B1-B7 at the Hamburg Messe, Germany, while co-located WTCE 2025 will take place in Halls A1 and A4, following the Passenger Experience Conference (PEC) on April 7.

Registering for one Expo grants visitors access to both, free of charge. AIX 2025 registration is open online here and WTCE 2025 registration is available here.
