AMI Group welcomed guests to the main stage at the IFSA Inflight Services Zone of APEX FTE EXPO this afternoon for The Art of Wine, a tasting event showcasing a curated selection of wines and the stories behind each.

Attendees sampled Champagne Palmer & Co. Grands Terroirs 2015; Vincent Girardin Meursault Vieilles Vignes 2024, a Chardonnay from Burgundy's Côte de Beaune; and Tyrrell's Old Hillside Single Vineyard Shiraz 2023, a structured Australian red, in a wine tasting led by AMI Group's Jérémy Waszczuk, Managing Director, International Wine Division.

Chef Matthew Farrell, Vice President, Culinary Innovation and Development at AMI Group, joined Waszczuk on stage during the event.

The session explored why selecting wine for an airline goes beyond what is in the glass. Altitude, cabin conditions, menu compatibility and service execution all influence how passengers experience wine onboard.

"A great wine on the ground is not automatically the right wine in the air," Jérémy Waszczuk, Managing Director, International Wine Division at AMI Group, told PAX International during the event. "It is about understanding the wine, the food, the passenger and the environment. When those elements come together, you create something truly memorable."

AMI Group exhibited at this year's IFSA , which brought together suppliers across inflight catering, retail and passenger amenities and comfort.

The tasting highlighted the company’s approach to airline food and beverage programs, combining wine selection with culinary development, global sourcing and supplier partnerships.
